

Journal of the University of Bombay

ARTS: HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

Vol. XLI (New Series)

Number 77,

OCTOBER 1972

CONTENTS

ARTICLES

SANKSEPA SANKARA JAYA OF MADHAVACARYA OR SANKARA DIG- VIJAYA OF SRI VIDYARANYAMUNI	W. R. ANTARKAR	1
A NOTE ON THE UNUSUAL CHARACTER OF ACT IV IN THE VIKRAMORVASIYA	G. K. BHAT	24
THE 'THUNDER'—COW AND THE 'ASYA- VAMIA'	S. A. DANCE	28
THE TEXT-CRITICAL TENOR OF RGV. I 161	A. ESTELLER	52
SHAKESPEARES' PROBLEM PLAYS IN RELATION TO THE POETRY OF THE METAPHYSICALS	S. KANDASWAMY	78
MANUAL FOR THE KENT-ROSENOFF TEST OF WORD-ASSOCIATION BASED ON THE NORMATIVE STUDY CARRIED OUT BY THE DEPARTMENT OF APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY, UNIVERSITY OF BOMBAY	P. K. GHOSH AND INAYAT JALALI	107
'THE LEGACY OF JUSTICE OLIVER W. HOLMES (MARCH 8, 1841—MARCH 6, 1935)	B. P. DALAL	141
'TAMING THE FUTURE: CHALLENGE OF CHANGE IN SUPER-TECHNOLOGICAL AMERICA	B. RAMESH BABU	152
INDIAN EMIGRATION TO EAST AFRICAN COUNTRIES DURING XIX AND EARLY XX CENTURIES ...	R. R. RAMCHANDANI	166
HISTORICAL LINGUISTICS WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO INDO- ARYAN LANGUAGES		189

मुक्त-मयूर-श्रीधर-विरचित 'कीचकवध'	उषा माधव देशमुख	191
-----------------------------------	-----------------	-----

SEMINAR PAPERS ON LINGUISTICS

THE NATURE OF HISTORICAL GRAMMAR ...	A. M. GHATGE	199
ON THE INTERPRETATION OF ARJUNAUM (IN YASNA 9.22) ...	Usha Bhuise	203
ROOT-GERMINATION AND REDEFLICATED ROOTS IN SANSKRIT ...	S. A. DANGE	208
SANSKRIT PREFIXES STYLISTIC AND PECULIAR USAGES ...	M. G. DHADPALE	215
NOTES ON INTERNAL RECONSTRUCTION AND COMPARATIVE METHODS ...	M. A. MEHENDALE	236
ABOUT THE SPORADIC CHANGE $A > I$ IN PRĀKRIT ...	H. C. BHAYANT	241
THE SOURCE OF PRĀKRIT LANGUAGES ...	V. M. KULKARNI	245
DEŚYA WORDS IN PRĀKRIT ...	P. M. UPADHYE	249
STUDIES IN PĀLI PHONOLOGY ...	M. S. BHAT	256
PĀLI—ITS HISTORY AND ITS RELATION TO THE 'ORIGINAL' CANON ...	M. A. MEHENDALE	259
THE ABLATIVE IN MAHATHI ...	G. B. GRAMOPADHYE	264
INFLUENCE OF MARATHI ON THE STRUCTURE OF DAKHINI LANGUAGE ...	S. R. KULKARNI	267
A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF CASE-TERMINATIONS AND POST-POSITIONS IN MARATHI ...	YASMIN SHAIKH	281
ACTIVE-PASSIVE CONSTRUCTION OF GUJARATI LANGUAGE ...	URMI G. DESAI	289
A STUDY OF SOME OF THE ASPECTS IN THE EVOLUTION OF THE GUJARATI LANGUAGE ...	K. B. VYAS	297
MEWATI PRONOUNS ...	D. R. BHARADWAJ	312
USE OF POSTPOSITION 'ने' IN KHARIBOLI: A SIGNIFICANT DRIFT ...	C. L. PRABHAT	320
BOOK REVIEWS
THE PAKISTAN CHINA AXIS BY B. L. SHARMA ...	B. RAMESH BABU	323
VEDIC CONCEPT OF FIELD AND THE DIVINE FRUCTIFICATION BY S. A. DANGE ...	T. G. MAINKAR	325
THE AFRO-AMERICAN READINGS BY ROSS K. BAKER ...	B. RAMESH BABU	327

SANKṢEPA ŚĀNKARA JAYA OF MĀDHAVĀCĀRYA

OR

ŚĀNKARA DIGVIJAYA OF
ŚRĪ VIDYĀRĀṆYAMUNI

DR. W. R. ANTARKAR, M.A., LL.B., Ph.D.,

Khalsa College, Bombay.

Introductory :

IN two previous articles,¹ I discussed three biographies of Śrī Śāṅkarācārya. The next work to be considered is Sankṣepa Śāṅkara Jāya of Mādhavācārya or as it is more popularly called, Śāṅkara Digvijaya of Śrī Vidyārāṇyamuni. Hence the alternative title given to the article. The first is the title as found throughout the work while the second is the popularly known one. If the first is practically unknown to anyone except the readers of the work, the second is altogether unknown to the work itself. The common man's knowledge of the life of Śrī Śāṅkarācārya is based on this work only and religious preachers like the kirtankaras rely on this work only for his life-history.

Title and the author :

The work is available in mss. as well as in print. It was first printed by the Anandāśram Press, Poona as far back as 1863 A.D. Though, as stated already, the work is generally called Śāṅkara Digvijaya and has been ascribed by popular tradition to the celebrated Vidyārāṇyamuni, the work itself does not mention either name anywhere. The name of the work as given in all the colophons is Sankṣepa Śāṅkara Jāya and it has been uniformly attributed to Mādhava. An old tradition says that Mādhava was the brother of Sāyana, the famous commentator of the Vedas and that he became known as Vidyārāṇya after he became a Sannāyasin. There has been a great controversy regarding the identity of these figures but one āsthāna pundit of Śringeri Śārādā Mutt—Śrī Kṛṣṇa Jois Śāstrin—told me that according to his knowledge and belief, there were three Mādhyavas, none of whom ever became a Saṁnyāsin and then he cited the authority of Guruvamśa Kāvya, a poem in 19 cantos, composed by Kāśī Laxman Sūrin, a Śringeri mutt pundit, at the instance of Śrī Saccidānanda Bhārati Svāmi, the then ruling Svāmiji of the said mutt, on the strength of information, supplied by the latter to the former. Scholars have debated this issue of identity in a number of articles² and yet there has been no definite conclusion. Till such time, therefore, as such a conclusion is reached, I would prefer to keep the two distinct. I am going to show later that the work under consideration cannot be said to have come from the pen of Śrī Vidyāraṇyabhaṁṇi.

1. Vide the Journal of the University of Bombay, Vol. XXIX, Pt. 2., Sept. 1960, pp 113. to 121 and Vol. XXX, Pt. 2, Sept. 1961, pp. 73 to 80.

Extent and Nature :

All the available copies of the work I have inspected so far contain 16 chapters of unmixed poetry, with a total number of about 1843 stanzas. One Śāstrin (Śrī Mahādeva Śāstrin) from Kumbakonam showed me some additional stanzas as from the same S. Ś. Jaya but not found in the printed edition thereof. Now, the Govt. Oriental Mss. Library, Madras contains one solitary mss. of this work (their ref. no D. 12174) and on comparing the first chapter of the same, of which I have procured from them a copy, with the one in the printed book, I found that it did contain one additional stanza just in the same place as noted by the said Śāstrin i.e. between stanzas 4 and 5 of the printed edition. From this, it may be inferred at least tentatively that the said mss. is very likely to contain the other additional stanzas also.³

The work purports to be an epitome of an earlier work called Prācīna Śaṅkara Jaya. I have discussed the question of the identity of this earlier work in my first article in this series.⁴ I am.

2. Vide Indian Historical Quarterly, Vols. VI, VII and VIII.

3. It may be noted that in addition to this one stanza, the chapter contains two more stanzas between stt. 1 and 2. The first of these two has been quoted by the late Śrī T. Candrasekharan in his introduction to Vyāsa's Ś. V. The two stanzas are :—

(1) व्यासाचलप्रमुखपूर्विक पण्डितश्चमा— । भूतसम्भूतोच्चतरकाव्यतरोः सुरीते ।
विद्वन्मधुव्रतमुखोरिरसानि सर्वा— । श्यादानुमयकुसुमान्यहमक्षमोऽस्मि ॥

(2) यन्त्रादुद्वपधिषण्णासुणिना ग्रहीतुम् । शक्यं तदत्र सरसं सकलं गृहीत्वा ।
काञ्चिन्महेस्वरगुरुः स्मृतिभिन्नमोहः । संक्षेपशङ्करजयसज्जमातनोमि ॥

4. Vide Footnote note 1 above, Vol. XXIX.

therefore, unable to accept the contention of the Kānci Mutt that the Ś.V. of Anantānandagiri was the basis of this S. Ś. Jaya. In fact, it is more likely that both these works are indebted to that earlier Pr. Ś.V. In the absence of this Pr.Ś.V., it is not possible to say how far Mād. laid it under obligation and how faithfully.

Date :

It seems possible to settle somewhat correctly the period of composition of this work. The clues are as follows :—

(1) There are two commentaries on this work, viz., Diṇḍima of Dhanapatisūrin and Advaita-rājya-Laxmi of Acyutarāya Modak. At the end of these commentaries, both the writers have given the years of their completion. Thus, Diṇḍima says that it was completed in the year 1798 A.D. and A.R.L. says that it was completed in 1824 A.D. This gives us 1798 A.D. as the terminus ad quem of the work.

(2) It will be shown later that S. Ś. Jaya has borrowed from Śaṅkarābhyudaya of Rāja. D., who is said to have flourished towards the middle of the 17th Cent. A.D.⁵ If this is correct, the work must have been written after 1650 A.D. which is the terminus et quo.

The work, therefore, seems to have been composed sometime between 1650 A.D. and 1800 A.D.

Authenticity of the work :

Regarding this work, there has been a very great controversy, which can be stated as follows :—

Śrī T. S. Nārāyaṇa Śāstri said in 1916 A.D.⁶ and Mr Bodas agreed with him in 1923 A.D.⁷ that the work of Mādhyava, as available in print, was not the original one and that it was printed somewhat hastily by the Ānandāsrama Press, Poona, with many additions and prepared specially by some adherent of the Śringeri

5. See श्रीशंकराचार्य—जीवनचरित तथा उपदेश—by Professor B. Upadhyaya, p. 11.

6. Vide 'Age of Śaṅkara'—Part I.

7. Vide शंकराचार्य व त्यांचा सम्प्रदाय—p. 9.

Śārādā Mutt to counteract the claim of the Kāñci Mutt. Sri K. Kuppuswamy Aiyya quotes in श्रीशङ्करपीठतत्त्वदर्शनम्,⁸ a Kāñci Mutt publication, the following extract from a Telugu article by one Śrī Vemuri Prabhakar Śāstri of the Government O. Mss. Library, Madras :

“ I happened to meet at Bapṭla, Brahmarsī Vemuri Narasimha Śāstri during my recent tour in the Guntur District last year, in quest of manuscripts. I mentioned casually to him my reasons for doubting the authorship of Mādhaviya Śāṅkara Vijaya. Then he gave out the following secret. When he was at Madras about 15 years ago, he had the acquaintance of the late Śrī Bhaṭṭasrī, who wrote the Ś. V. published in the name of Vidyāranya and that four others helped him in this production. They, who were attached to Śringeri Mutt, had to do so to support the superiority of the Śringeri Mutt over the Kāñci Mutt, which was also claiming to be the chief one, presided over by Śrī Śāṅkara. The importance of the Śringeri Mutt is very much in evidence in this Śāṅkara Vijaya. It is not so found in Vyāsācala Grantha.”

The extract seems to voice the same charge against Mādhava's S. Ś. Jaya. Sri Aiyya, however, does not seem to be convinced and remarks :—

“ It is clear from the above that Bhaṭṭasrī Nārāyaṇa Śāstri should have been either the real author of the work or was falsely giving out that he was the author.”

I was told at Kāñci that a dispute arose in 1844 A.D. between the Kāñci and the Śringeri Mutts regarding the right to perform the Tāṭaṅka Pratisthā to the Goddess Akhilāṇḍeśvari at Jambūkeśvaram. When asked by the Court to furnish evidence for their respective rights, the Kāñci Mutt produced Śivarahasya and Mārkaṇḍeya Samhitā. The Śringeri Mutt had no such work and hence produced what now passes as Vidyāranya's Śāṅkara Digvijaya.

If now the Telugu article, written in 1922 A.D., is to be believed, the work must have been composed prior to 1905 A.D., when the meeting of Bhaṭṭasrī and Brahmarsī Vemuri N. Śāstri must have taken place. According to the second story, the work must have come into being shortly after 1844 A.D.,. Even if we reconcile somehow these two calculations, the total reckoning will be found to conflict with the date 1798 A.D. before which the work in the present form must have come into existence. I have shown already that there is sufficiently strong evidence for such an inference.

8. Ide pp. 11 and 12—English portion.

Moreover, I have seen personally very old mss.—some even on palm-leaf—of this same work with the same extent, in libraries all over India. There are some small portions also of this work, preserved in some places, like Laghu-Śāṅkara-Digvijaya,⁹ Maṇḍana Paṇḍita Vijaya¹⁰ &c., and the text therein was found to conform to the corresponding printed text. It is not reasonable to suppose that mss. of a work of so recent an origin as about 1845 A.D. should be found spread on such a scale throughout India, particularly when printing facility had become available, more or less. We have therefore, to set aside the charge against S. Ś. Jaya of Mādhava as unproved and even disproved by evidence to the contrary.

This, however, should not be construed to mean that I accept Vidyāranya's authorship or the historical authenticity of the work. I have come to the conclusion that the work is no independent composition of one single author but is merely a collection of stanzas from four or even more earlier works, put together to form this work. It is for this reason again that I feel that it is unworthy of a genius like Vidyāranya. My findings are :—

Out of a total of about 1843 stanzas, comprising the 16 chapters of this work, about 1100 stanzas are found to be common to 4 other works as follows :—

(1) Vyā.'s Ś. V.	475 stanzas
(2) Tiru. D.'s Śāṅkarābhyudaya	475 stanzas
(3) Rāja. D.'s Śāṅkarābhyudaya	125 stanzas
(4) Rāma.'s Pat. Ch.	11 stanzas
Total :	1084 stanzas

9. Noticed in the Gaekwad Oriental Series, No cxiv, p. 1042.

10. Noticed in the Indian Museum Mss. Collection in the Royal Asiatic Society Library, Calcutta.

In most of the cases, verbatim stanzas in succession are found common. In a few cases, only some lines are common while in still fewer cases, substance is the same but stanzas have been composed afresh. The following are a few instances of each :—

Verbatim :

Mādhava :	I : 29 to 32	=	Tiru. D.	I : 27 to 30
	I : 34 to 40	=	"	I : 31 to 37
	I : 55 to 97	=	"	I : 42 to 84
	II : 49 to 65	=	Vyā.	IV : 3 to 19
	III : 10 : c, d, to 37 : a, b	=	"	VI : 10 to 36
	III : 37 : c, d & 38 : a	=	"	VI : 37 (3rd line dropped)
	III : 38 : b, c, d, to 43 : a	=	"	VI : 38 to 42
	III : 44 to 77	=	"	VI : 44 to 77
	V : 35 to 58	=	Tiru. D.	II : 76 to 99
	V : 60 to 66	=	Vyā.	XI : 127 to 133
	V : 68 to 80	=	"	IV : 49 to 61
	V : 87 & 90	=	Pat. Ch.	VIII : 18 & 19
	V : 92 to 95	=	"	VIII : 63 to 66
	V : 98 to 101	=	"	VIII : 67 to 70
	VI : 21 to 29	=	Tiru. D.	III : 61 to 69
	VI : 68 to 71	=	Rāja D.	II : 16 to 19
	VII : 104 to 107	=	"	II : 33 & 35 to 37
	VII : 67 to 70	=	"	II : 24 to 26 & 29
	XII : 1 to 37	=	"	IV : 1, 2, 6, 7, 14 to 33 and 50 to 62
	VII : 81 to 100	=	Vyā.	V : 12 to 31
	VII : 74 to 130	=	Tiru. D.	IV : 54 to 110
	IX : 1 to 21	=	"	V : 1 to 21
	IX : 43 to 67	=	"	V : 31 to 55
	X : 30 to 42	=	"	VI : 46 to 57 & 59

Half Stanzas :

Mādhava :	V : 67 : a b	=	Vyā.	IX : 134 : a b
	V : 91 : c d	=	Pat. Ch.	VIII : 91 : c d
	VI : 20 : c d	=	Tiru. D.	III : 59 : c d
	VI : 60 : a, b	=	Rāja. D.	I : 64 : a, b
	VII : 46 : a, b	=	"	II : 11 : a, b

New stanzas for common substance :

Mādhava :	II : 36 to 72	=	Rāja D.	I : 21 to 27 (except st. 27)
	II : 70	=	"	I : 29
	II : 85/6/7	=	"	I : 31/2/3
	VI : 44	=	Tiru. D.	III : 37
	VI : 79	=	Vyā.	V : 10
	101	=	Tiru. D.	IV : 26
	VIII : 133	=	Rāja. D.	II : 50
	XII : 83	=	Tiru. D.	III : 95
	XIII : 40	=	Vyā.	VII : 46
	XIV : 101	=	"	VIII : 71
	XV : 3 & 29	=	Rāja. D.	III : 39 & 42

These are only a few of the many instances to be found in Mādhava's work, when compared with the other three or four works. It will be seen from a comparison of the verbatim quotations in Chapter III of Mādhava's work with Ch. VI of Vyā's work that Mādhava also combines half-stanzas of the latter to form his own complete stanzas. The same group discloses that in some cases, he has formed his stanzas by taking three lines of one stanza and the first line of the next stanza from the latter.

A very natural question is here likely to be raised, viz., what evidence is there to show that Mādhava has borrowed from these other writers and not vice-versa? My reasons for such a deduction are :—

Firstly, Mādhava definitely refers to Vyāsācala in the stanza व्यासचलप्रमुखपूर्विक &c., cited earlier. Moreover, I personally believe that there is a covert reference to the poet Vyāsācala at

I: 17 of Mādhava's work, though the actual context favours the commentator's interpretation thereof, as referring to himself.

Secondly, Vyā's work is cryptic in style and arrangement while in the work of Mādhava, there is more elaborate arrangement and amplification of material.

Between Vyā. and Mādhava, therefore, Vyā. seems to be earlier than Mādhava.

Further, it has been found that the stanzas, single or in succession, found common between Mādhava and the other writers, fit in into the contexts of the latter quite well while in Mādhava, they give rise to repetitions and contradictions. A few illustrations will bear out this point.

(1) While describing Śaṅkara's education, Mādhava tells us that at the age of 2 only, he learnt to read and write the characters and then, after a single hearing of the Kāvya and the Purāṇas, he understood them without instruction. The next stanza tells us in a general way that he learnt without a teacher and taught his colleagues. The next two stanzas tell us again that when it was still time for playing, he mastered all the scripts (लिपीः), learnt the Vedas without any instruction and mastered Kāvya and Nyāya. The first two stanzas from Mādhava correspond to two in Vyā. (XI: 114/5) while the next two correspond to two in Tiru. D. (II: 12 & 14).

(2) While describing the encounter between Śaṅkara and Kumārila, Mādhava gives the following three stanzas in the same 7th chapters :—

- (a) अष्टौ सहस्राणि विभान्ति विद्वान् । सद्वातिकानां प्रथमेऽत्र भाष्ये । अहं यदि स्यामगृहीतदीक्षः । ध्रुवं विधायै सुनिबन्धमस्य ॥ 83 ॥
- (b) भाष्यं प्रणीतं भवतेति योगिन् । आकर्ण्य तत्रापि विधाय वृत्तिम् ।
यशोऽधिगच्छेयमिति स्म वाञ्छा ।
स्थिता पुरा सम्प्रति किं तदुक्त्वा ॥ 103 ॥
- (c) भाष्यं न मेऽजनि हि शाबरभाष्यवत्तद्— ।
भाष्येऽपि किञ्चन विलिख्य यशोऽधिगन्तुम् ॥ 105 : c, d ॥

The idea that Kumārila missed the chance to attain fame by writing a commentary on Śaṅkara's ब्रह्मसूत्रभाष्य because he was आसदीक्ष is obviously repeated, more particularly in the second and the third stanzas. It is interesting to note that these three stanzas correspond verbatim to stanzas in three different works, viz. Vyā. V: 14, Tiru. D. IV: 28 and Rāja. D. II: 35.

(3) A similar repetition is found with regard to the two sins which, Kumārila says, he has committed, viz. ईश्वरनिरास and गुरुद्रोह. The following stanzas from Mādhava may be noted :

- (a) दोषद्वयस्यास्य चिकीर्षूर्हन् । यथोदितं निष्कृतिमाश्रयाशम् ।
प्राविक्षमेव पुनरुक्तभूता । जाता भवत्पादनिरीक्षणेन ॥ VII: 102 ॥
- (b) प्रायोऽधुना तदुभयप्रभवाशान्त्यर्थं ।
प्राविक्षमार्यं तुषपावकमात्तदीक्षः ॥ VII: 105 : a, b ॥

These correspond verbatim to Tiru. D. IV: 27 and Rāja D. II: 35 : a, b.

(4) When Śaṅkara offers to revive Kumārila, the latter admits Śaṅkara's capacity to do so but politely refuses to be revived. In this connection, the following stanzas have been given by Mādhava :—

- (a) संजीवनाय चिरकालमृतस्य च त्वं ।
शक्तोऽसि शङ्कर दयोमिलहृष्टिपातः ।
आरब्धमेतदधुना व्रतमागमोक्तं ।
मुञ्चन्तस्तं न भवितास्मि बुधाविनिन्द्यः ॥ VII: 110 ॥
- (b) जाने तवाहं भगवत्प्रभावं । संहृत्य भूतानि पुनर्यथावत् ।
खण्डुं समर्थोऽसि तथाविधो माम् ।
उज्जीवयेस्वेदिह किं विचित्रम् ॥ VII: 111 ॥
- (c) नाभ्युत्सहे किंतु यतिक्षितीन्द्र ।
संशल्पितं हातुमिदं व्रताग्र्यम् ॥ & c. VII: 112 : a, b ॥

These three correspond to Rāja. D. II: 39 and Tiru. D. IV: 30, 31.

On the contrary, Kumārila requests Śaṅkara to instruct him into तारक ब्रह्म and thereby make him कृतार्थ. Read:

- (a) उत्तारकं देशिकवर्यं मह्यं— । मादिश्य तद्ब्रह्म कृतार्थयेथाः ॥ VII: 112 ॥
- (b) त्वं विश्वनाथ इव मे समये समागाः ।
तत्तारकं समुपदिश्य कृतार्थयेथाः ॥ VII: 118 ॥

These correspond to Tiru. D. IV: 31 : c, d and Rāja. D. II: 43 : c, d.

(5) While Kumārila is asking Śaṅkara to go to Maṇḍana, Mādhava gives the following :—

- (a) दिगन्तविश्रान्तयशा विजेयो ।
यस्मिञ्जिते सर्वमिदं जितं स्यात् ॥ VII : 113 : c, d ॥
- (b) सदा वदन्योपपदं महान्तं ।
स विश्वरूपः प्रथितो महीतले ॥ VII : 114 : a, b ॥

These correspond to Tiru. D. IV : 32 and Vyā. V : 35. The repetition between दिगन्तविश्रान्तयशाः and प्रथितो महीतले is obvious. Similarly, वशं गते तत्र भवेन्मनोरथः । (Mādhava VII : 115 : c = Vyā. V : 35) repeats the idea in यस्मिञ्जिते सर्वमिदं जितं स्यात् । above in substance though not verbatim.

Apart from these repetitions, if we look to Vyā. V : 34¹¹ which precedes सदा वदन् & c., (V : 35) quoted above, we shall find that the two present participles वदन् and वदन् in V : 34 and V : 35 in Vyā. connect these two stanzas better syntactically than the two consecutive stanzas in Mādhava, which are from Tiru. D. and Vyā. respectively.

(6) While narrating the incident of Śaṅkara's Parakāyāpraveśa, Mādhava gives the following two stanzas :

- (a) स ददर्श कुत्रचिदमर्त्यमिव त्रिविवच्युतं विगतसत्त्वमपि ।
मनुजेश्वरं परिवृतं प्रलपत्प्रमदाभिरातिमदमात्वजनम् ॥ IX : 74 ॥
- (b) अथो निशाखेटवशाददृष्ट्या मूले तरोर्मोहवशात्परासुम् ।
तं वीक्ष्य मार्गोत्तरकं नृपालं सनन्दनं प्राह स संयमीन्द्रः ॥ IX : 75 ॥

The latter of these two stanzas corresponds verbatim to Rāja. D. IV : 34. In Rāja. D., Śaṅkara is described as being on tour. He is going from place to place. Rāja. D. has described the revival by Śaṅkara of a dead child at Kauśāmbī and thereafter, he describes this incident of Parakāyāpraveśa. In this context, therefore, the word अथ denotes अन्तर्य while in Mādhava, the second stanza repeats very clearly what has been stated in the first and thus leaves the word अथ without any propriety. This shows that Rāja. D.'s work is earlier than that of Mādhava.

11. Read: भगवन्प्रवदाम्युपायमेकं । भवतो भाष्यनिबन्धने स्फुटम् ।
मगधेषु वसन्ममास्ति शिष्यः । स तु तस्मै प्रभवत्यसंशयम् ॥ V : 34 ॥

(7) While describing in Ch. XI the Ugra-Bhairava incident, Mādhava says that when the Bhairava approached Śaṅkara for his head, so that by offering it to Lord Śiva, he (i.e. भैरव) might go to heaven with his human body, he pointed out to Śaṅkara the perishable nature of the human body and cited the example of Dadhīci, who had surrendered his own for परोपकार and attained immortal fame. The instance of Dadhīci occurs in Mādhava thrice in three different stanzas, 17, 18 and 21,¹² which correspond to Vyā IX : 40 (c, d), Tiru. D. VII : 15 (a, b) and Rāja D. IV : 65 (b).

Regarding contradictions, we find the following :—

While describing the discussion between Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana, Mādhava tells us at VIII : 130 in his work that Bhārati, Mandana's wife, saw that Maṇḍana's garland had faded. She then asked both Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana to come in for meals and then said to Śaṅkara thus :—

- (a) कोपातिरेकवशतः शपतां पुरा माम् । दुर्वाससा तदवधिर्विहितो जयस्ते ।
साहं भयागतमूर्धमि शमिप्रचीरे—
त्युक्त्वा ससंभ्रमममुं निजघाम याप्तीम् ॥ VIII : 133 ॥
- (b) बबन्ध त्रिःशङ्कामरण्यदुर्गा— मन्त्रेण तां जेतुमन्त मनीन्द्रः ॥
जयोऽपि तस्याः स्वमर्त्यसिद्धये ।
सर्वजितः स्वस्य च मानहेतोः ॥ VIII : 134 ॥
- (c) जानामि देवीं भवतीं विधातुः ।
देवस्य भार्या पुरभिस्तनभामि ॥ VIII : 135 : a, b ॥

These stanzas clearly show that after noticing Maṇḍana's defeat, Bhārati was going back to her heavenly abode, as per the limit of the curse laid down by Durvāsa and that then, Śaṅkara detained her by a charm for the purpose of entering into argument with her and defeating her also. As against this, we are told by Mādhava in Ch. IX of his work that when Maṇḍana surrendered to

12. Read: (a) रिपुं निहन्तुं कुलिशाय बज्जी ।
दाधीचमादात्किल वाञ्छितास्थि ॥ XI : 17
- (b) दधीचिमुख्याः क्षणिकं शरीरं ।
त्यक्त्वा परार्थे स्म यशःशरीरम् ॥ XI : 18
- (c) जीमूतवाहो निजजीवदायी । दधीचिरप्यस्थि मुदा ददातः ।
आचन्द्रतारार्कमपायशून्यं । प्राप्ता यशः कर्णपथं गती
हि ॥ XI : 21 ॥

Śaṅkara and asked him to initiate him into the order of Saṃnyāsins, Śaṅkara looked at Bhārati significantly. She understood what he meant and then told him a story from her childhood that it was predicted by an ascetic that she would enter into an academic discussion with a great Yati in her later life. She then said that she was the other half of Maṇḍana, whom, therefore, Śaṅkara had conquered only half. She then called upon Śaṅkara to defeat her first and they only to make Maṇḍana his disciple.¹³ She ruled out Śaṅkara's objection to a Yati like him entering into an argument with a lady and said that even if Śaṅkara were the Highest Reality, she had an ardent desire to argue with him.¹⁴

All this narration seems to be so very different from—nay, even foreign to—the earlier one of binding Bhārati by means of a charm and detaining her for a discussion when she was going back to her heavenly abode. There, she seems to have had no desire to argue with Śaṅkara while here she almost challenges him to a discussion before he could make Maṇḍana his disciple. In my humble opinion, this contradiction is due to Mādhava's attempt to put together stanzas from the works of Rāja. D. and Tiru. D., with his own changes. The stanza कोपातिरेकवशतः & c. (Mādh. VIII: 183) is worth a comparison with Rāja. D. II: 50, which runs thus:

कोपातिरेकवशतः शयता पुरा माम् । शयानविस्तृत्य जयो विहितो विधाया ।
साहं यथागतमुपमि शमिप्रवीरे- । त्युक्त्वा तिरोधिमुक्तोभयभारतो सा ॥

Now, according to Rāja D., Bhārati disappeared immediately after this and this agrees with Rāja's story because he does not describe any discussion between Bhārati and Śaṅkara and the subsequent story of Parakāyāpraveśa. Mādhava has changed the last quarter of the above stanza and connected it with the next stanza of his own in a different metre. The subsequent portion relating to Śaṅkara-Bhārati-discussion and the incident of Parakāyāpraveśa is the narration of Tiru. D., who does not describe the disappearance of Bhārati as done by Rāja. D. and hence there is no contradiction in his version also. The contradiction in Mādhava is quite clear and it is obviously due to his attempt to combine stanzas from the works of the two writers.

13. Read: अपि तु त्वयाऽद्य न समग्रजितः । प्रथिताग्रणीर्मम परिपदहम् ।
वपुरर्धमस्य न जिता मतिमन् ।
अपि मां विजित्य कुरु शिष्यमिमम् ॥ IX: 56 ॥

14. Read: यदि त्वमस्य जगतः प्रभवः । ननु सर्वविच्च परमः पुरुषः ।
तदपि त्वयैव सह वादकृते । हृदयं विभति मम तूत्कलिकाम् ॥ IX: 57

Moreover, it has to be noted that in Mādhava, Bhārati's discussion with Śaṅkara is cut off from the story of Śaṅkara's binding her by the charm by another story of Maṇḍana's regret that Śaṅkara had proved Jaimini wrong and Śaṅkara's telling him how he had not done so and how Jaimini's followers had misunderstood and misinterpreted him. Tiru. D. does not give this story and hence there is at least no break in his version. Mādhava, who gives it, breaks up the story of Śaṅkara-Bhārati discussion, in which he follows Tiru. D. verbatim.

(2) Contradiction appears in the form of confusion in names and some technical terms also.

(a) VII: 118 (S. Ś. Jaya) refers to Maṇḍana while st. 114 refers to Viśvarūpa and st. 116 identifies the latter with Umveka. St. 113 corresponds to Tiru. D. IV: 32, St. 114 to Vyā. V: 35 and St. VII: 116 corresponds verbatim to Rāja. D. II: 41. This means that Mādhava has rolled all the three—Maṇḍana, Viśvarūpa and Umveka—into one person who later on became Sureśvara, who thus becomes identical with all these three. In this connection, it has to be noted that Tiru. D. mentions Maṇḍana only while Vyā. and Rāja. D. mention both Maṇḍana and Viśvarūpa but keep them distinct and describe an encounter between Śaṅkara and Viśvarūpa and the latter's conversion into a Saṃnyāsina as Sureśvara.

This confusion is found at two other places. After describing the birth of Sureśvara from Brahmā and alternatively that of Maṇḍana from Brhaspati (Mādh. III: 6, 8) (implying that Maṇḍana and Sureśvara are identical), Mādhava gives an account of Ubhaya-Bhārati, presumably Maṇḍana's wife, but in the course of this narration, Maṇḍana becomes Viśvarūpa throughout, implying once again an identity of the earlier Maṇḍana and this Viśvarūpa. When Śaṅkara comes to Māhīmatī, this same pair has been referred to as Maṇḍana and Ubhaya-Bhārati throughout Ch. VIII. In this case, it has to be noted that almost the entire narration about the marriage of Viśvarūpa and Ubhaya-Bhārati is to be found in Vyā., who, as stated above, refers to Viśvarūpa only.

Still later in Ch. XIII, Sureśvara, who is asked by Śaṅkara to write a commentary on his Rū. Sū. Bh., has been referred to as such in the very first stanza, then as Maṇḍana in st. 39 and thrice as Viśvarūpa in stanzas 21, 54 and 68. Out of the last three stanzas, the first is found in Rāja. D. (II: 53) and the other two are found in Vyā. (VII : 58 & 70). Once again, all the three have been rolled into one.

(8) Even like the first name of Sureśvara, Mādhava does not seem to be either particular or certain about what Śaṅkara wanted him or Kumārila to write on his Br.Sū.Bh. In connection with Kumārila, Vyā. and Rāja. D. refer to Vārtikas while Tiru. D. mentions Vṛtti but Mādhava mentions in Ch. VII both, in stanzas, which correspond to stanzas in all these three.¹⁵

Again in Ch. XIII, where Sureśvara is asked to write the commentary, the very first stanza refers to Vṛtti while the later stanzas, which are common to Vyā.'s works mention Vārtikas.¹⁶ Two stanzas (XIII : 21 & 73), which correspond to Rāja.D.II : 48 & 60, use the word Tikā. All these three words—Vṛtti, Vārtika and Tikā—are technical terms and have special connotations.¹⁷

In addition to repetitions and contradictions, we also find that there is in Mādhava a lot of elaboration and a greater element of the supernatural, in comparison with the other three writers. Both these factors have been regarded as indications of a later date of any work.

If we look at the various incidents in Śaṅkara's life, as described by these four writers, we find that Vyā. does not give a large number of them while Mādhava gives them all. Between Tiru. D. and Rāja. D., Tiru. D. gives some of them and omits the others and so does Rāja. D., there being no agreement between the two regarding the same.

Thus, Tiru. D. and Rāja. D. agree in giving the stories of Śaṅkara's meeting with king Rājasekhara and Śaṅkara's offer to Kumārila to revive him. Tiru. D., however, gives a number of stories like those of (1) the golden Āmalakas even while Śaṅkara was in the Gurukula, (2) very learned persons coming to him for instruction, immediately after his return from the Gurukula, (3) the visit of the seges to his house, who told his mother about his life-span &c., (4) Śaṅkara's making the waters of the Narmadā enter

15. Cf. Mād. VII : 83 = Vyā. V : 14 (Vārtikas)
VII : 107 and 118 = Rāja. D. II : 37 and 43 (Vārtikas)
VII : 103 = Tiru. D. IV : 28 (Vṛtti)

16. Cf. Mād. XIII : 3, 43, 44, 45, 48, 53 = Vyā. VII : 29, 49, 50, 51, 54, 57.

17. See Vyākaraṇa Mahābhāṣya of Patanjali—Tr. by the late MM. Vēsu-devaśāstri Abhyankar, Vol. VII, pp. 1 and 2.

the karaka, shortly after he went to the hermitage of Govinda and the subsequent explanation of that deed by Govinda and (5) Śaṅkara's encounter with Lord Śiva in the form of an Antyaaja. None of these stories has been given by Rāja. D. who, however, gives three other stories—one about the curse of a Gandharva upon the crocodile, which had caught Śaṅkara's foot in the Cūrṇī river, the other, occurring at the end of the Ugra-bhairava incident, about Padmapāda's power to invoke Lord Nṛsiṃha at will and the third about Śaṅkara who, being prevailed upon by his other disciples not to allow Sureśvara to write Vārtikas on his Br. Sū. Bh., consoled him by saying that he would be reborn as Vācaspati and write Bhāṣya-Tikā, which would become famous and which would make him famous also. Tiru. D. is silent over these stories, the one about the crocodile having been omitted by him altogether.

None of these stories has been given by Vyā. while Mādhava has given all of them. In addition to these, Mādhava gives some stories, which have not been given by any one of these three writers. Thus, the stories of Lord Maheśa manifesting Himself on the Vyāparvata in Kerala and some king Rājasekhara building, in pursuance of a directive received in a dream, a temple to that God and arranging for His worship, marks of Maṇḍana's house with the refrain जानीहि तन्मण्डनपण्डितैः,¹⁸ the initial wrangle between Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana,¹⁹ Śaṅkara's reviving his own body in flames after his flight back from the body of Amarṇka, Padmapāda's curing with his own power, Śaṅkara's Bhagandara disease, which even the divine Aśvins, sent by Lord Śiva, could not cure, Śaṅkara's invoking, at the instance of his dying mother, Lord Śiva, whose Gaṇas then came to take her away but with whom she refused to go and then Śaṅkara's invoking Lord Viṣṇu, whose Gaṇas came in an aerial car and took her away in the same²⁰ and finally, Śaṅkara's encounter with the Krakaca Kāpālin.

Out of these, the stories of learned pundits coming to Śaṅkara for instruction, king Rājasekhara's encounter with Śaṅkara, marks of Maṇḍana's house and the initial wrangle between Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana are without any element of the supernatural but are

18. Cf. Mād. VIII : 6, 7, 8.

19. The wrangle begins with कुतो मुण्डयागलान्मुण्डो &c. Mād. VIII : 16-31.

20. Mād. XIV : 42 tells us that Śaṅkara's mother gave up her body like a Yogin and stanza 44 says that after her death, messengers of Lord Viṣṇu came in an aerial car, that she was delighted to see them and praised her son. . . . &c. How could she be delighted and/or how could she praise her son after she had given up her body?

clearly additions to the original by way of elaboration. The story of the pundits is obviously in anticipation of Śaṅkara's future greatness and is clearly out of place. The story of king Rājasekhara appears to be a historical anachronism.²¹ Moreover, out of Tiru. D., Rāja. D. and Mādhava, who give the story, Tiru. D. refers to Rājasekhara once only and devotes only 4 stanzas to him. Rāja. D. mentions Rājasekhara twice but has not more than about 5 stanzas in all. His first reference is to the king's reading out his three dramas to Śaṅkara while the second describes in 4 stanzas only how the dramas were destroyed in a fire and how Śaṅkara, at the king's request, dictated them to him from memory.²² Mādhava refers to Rājasekhara thrice, once at II : 2, as some king of Kerala and then twice as in Rāja. D. In his second reference, Mādhava adds the story of a boon by Śaṅkara to the king for getting a son at the instance of the latter and Śaṅkara's asking him in private to perform an iṣṭi for the purpose. Mādhava's elaboration here is quite obvious and otherwise also, this second reference is more elaborate than the ones in Tiru. D. and Rāja. D. The four stanzas in the third reference are just the same as in Rāja. D. (Mād XIV : 171-174 = Rāja. D.-III : 35-38). Mādhava's posteriority to both (as also to Vyā.) is, I think, beyond doubt here.

These two stories have been given by Tiru. D. and Rāja. D. but the other two have been given by Mādhava only. Out of them the story of the marks of Maṇḍana's house may be accorded some probability-value but the story of the wrangle raises a number of doubts and questions, which have convinced me that it is highly improbable, in addition to being extremely damaging to both Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana as also to the others present there.²³

Out of the remaining stories, those of the appearance of Lord Maheśa on the Vṛṣādrī, the curse on the crocodile, the golden Amalakas, the visit of the sages and their prediction, the waters

21. Dr. Zāmbre has given three reasons for this :—

- (1) The dramatist Rājasekhara belonged to the 10th Cent. A.D.
- (2) The dramatist was not a king and no king named Rājasekhara is known to have written any dramas.
- (3) No Rājasekhara was ever a king of Kerala.

(Fide Dr. Zāmbre's thesis on Rājasekhara—B.O.R.I., Poona-4.)

22. The word कवचन applied to Rājasekhara by Rāja. D. (as also by Mād.) in the second reference is not understood.

23. It has to be noted that Tiru. D. is incomplete and does not give the stories of the Bhagandra disease, death of Śaṅkara's mother, Krakaca Kāpālin &c.

of the Narmadā entering the karaka, Śaṅkara's encounter with the Antyaaja are instances of addition of new supernatural stories altogether while the other stories of Śaṅkara's revival of his own body in flames, Padmapāda's power to invoke Lord Nṛsiṃha at will, his curing Śaṅkara of the Bhagandra disease and killing Abhinava-Gupta and Śaṅkara's invoking Lord Śiva first and Lord Viṣṇu afterwards and so on are all extensions of the supernatural, which existed already in the stories as narrated by the other three also. The story of Krakaca is a new addition altogether by Mādhava.²⁴

The appendages, whether by way of elaboration or by way of introducing a new or a greater element of the supernatural, render the story unnatural and highly improbable, in comparison with the earlier versions—even factually and many a time, cause an unpardonable damage to the character of Śaṅkara, whose divine status the biographers have acknowledged and started with. The writers seem to be totally unaware of the harm they have thus caused to the character of Śaṅkara. It is true that Tiru. D. and Rāja. D. are also somewhat guilty on this score but it is more than clear that Mādhava is all the more so and is at times almost outrageous in this regard. Vyā. is almost free from these faults when compared with the other three.

Added to this is the fact of sudden and most unnaturally frequent changes of metre, which is clearly the result of Mādhava's attempt to fuse together stanzas from the three works. This is particularly in evidence where Mādhava has borrowed from all the three writers in the same place and context. That has given rise to change of metre in every alternate stanza or in every two or three stanzas. The other three writers are also found to introduce such changes of metre but they are neither so frequent nor so unnatural or forced. The impression of artificiality and force, which is absent in them, is strongly bad in Mādhava.

24. The story of Śaṅkara-Vyāsa meeting, given by all the four, has been made by Mād. similarly derogatory to Śaṅkara. According to Vyā., Tiru. D. and Rāja D., Vyāsa as Vyāsa comes to Śaṅkara and being satisfied with his Br. Sū. Bh., grants him an extension of life by 16 years. Mād. only makes Vyāsa come in the form of an old brahmin and then, after a discussion between the two for 8 days, Śaṅkara intervenes to point out Vyāsa's identity to Śaṅkara and then Śaṅkara implores his pardon &c. It is not understood how Śaṅkara failed to realise what his disciple was able to do and had to point out to him.

Mādhava again makes Śaṅkara express to Vyāsa a desire to end his life in the Ganges. Wherefore this weakness in a ब्रह्मज्ञानी like Śaṅkara? The story is an elaboration and a modification of the version of the other three writers and in the process, discredits the figure of Śaṅkara.

All these factors have driven me to the conclusion that Vyā. is the oldest and Mādhava the latest of the 4 writers, Tiru. D. and Rāja. D. standing midway between the two. Hence also my conclusion that Mādhava has borrowed from the other three and not vice-versa. This question of priority is very important and that is my justification for dealing with the evidence at such length, my object having been to try to decide the issue beyond the pale of a doubt. I think that the examples cited are sufficient to decide the point at issue. At least, I do not understand how to explain them otherwise. It is possible to argue that the other three writers have picked up from Mādhava the portions or stanzas, according as they thought fit and prepared their works but this leaves unanswered the question of the condition of Mādhava's own work. I have not exhausted all the evidence and feel convinced that further examination and analysis of the work will only confirm my conclusion. In fact, the more I read, the more I found that the work of Mādhava was nothing but a plagiarised version of a number of earlier works like those of Vyā. and others and then I was very strongly reminded of Śaṅkara's remark: "सर्वप्रकारेण यथायथाजं वैताशिकसमय उपपत्तिमत्त्वाय परीक्ष्यते तथातथा सिक्ताकूपवद्विदीर्यत एव। न काविदप्यत्रोपपत्तिं पश्यामः॥ Br. Sū. Bh. II : 2 : 32.

With regard to Pat. Ch. by Rāmabhadrasurin, it is an independent work, which has only 11 stanzas in common with that of Mādhava. It seems unnatural that it should have borrowed only about a dozen stanzas from Mādhava without any material gain and that they should include a couple of stanzas concerning an incident, which has been consistently omitted by all the biographers of Śaṅkara, viz. the passing away of Govinda-muni.

Tiru. D.'s work breaks off in Ch. VII in the midst of the Ugra-bhairava incident and looking to the large number of stanzas found common already between that work and that of Mādhava, it would not be unreasonable to infer that many more might have been traced to the remaining part of Tiru.'s work, if found out. Moreover, I have shown in my first article²⁵ how two stanzas, said to belong to Pr. Ś. V. of Ānand, are found in the work of Mādhava also, with one word changed. If that Pr. Ś. V. were to come to light, it is possible that still some more stanzas would be traced to that work also.

25. Vide the Journal of the University of Bombay, Vol. XXIX, Part 2, Sept. 1960, p. 117 (Footnote 11).

If we look to the other i.e. unborrowed part of Mādhava's work, we come across many instances of loose and untenable writing, a few instances of which may be noted. Independent instances of greater elements of the supernatural have been noted already.

(1) While describing the birth of Padmapāda, Maṇḍana and Sureśvara, Mādhava makes conflicting statements.

- (a) Thus, at III : 2, Padmapāda is said to have been born from Viṣṇu while III : 6 tells us that Aruṇa was born as Sanandana. Now, all are agreed that Sanandana and Padmapāda were one and the same person but then, how could one person be born from two gods?
- (b) Similarly, III : 6 says that Sureśvara was born from Brahmā and Ānandagiri from Brhaspati (मिरा निधिः) while III : 8 states as an alternative view (इति केचित्) that Maṇḍana was born from Brhaspati and Ānandagiri from Nandīśvara. This means that the author has no definite information on the point.

(2) While describing the re-entry of Śaṅkara into his original body (in the incident of Parakāyāpavesa), Mādhava gives the following stanzas :

- (a) उद्बोधितः सदसि तैरवलम्ब्य मूर्च्छां । निगत्य राजतनुतो निजमाविवेश ।
मात्रं पुरोदितनयेन स देशिकेन्द्रः ।
संज्ञामवाप्य च पुरेव समुत्थितोऽभूत् ॥ X : 57
- (b) तदनु कुहरमेत्य पूर्वदृष्टं । नरपतिभूत्यविसृष्टपावकेन ।
निजवपुरवलोक्य दहमानं । इदिति स योगधुरंधरो विवेश ॥ X : 58

In addition to change of metre, both the stanzas repeat that Śaṅkara entered his original body. The first says clearly that he entered the body as he had left it (पुरोदितनयेन पूर्वोक्तन्यायेन—धनं), regained consciousness and woke up as before. The second stanza says that thereafter (तदनु), Śaṅkara came to the cave and seeing his body in flames, entered it suddenly. In addition to the repetition, which leaves the word तदनु without propriety or sense, there is a contradiction between the two stanzas since the first contains no reference to the body being in flames. Dhanapati's attempt to explain this by saying that stanza 58 describes how Śaṅkara entered the body in flames is meaningless because Stanza 57 has explained that also by the word पुरोदितनयेन. The repetition and the contradiction are, to my mind, inescapable facts.

(3) I have commented already on the story of the initial wrangle between Śaṅkara and Maṇḍana. It is so childish and silly and so very derogatory to the characters of all the persons involved in it that it would, I think be highly unjust to hold that a man like Vidyāraṇya was responsible for it. I have shown in my thesis on Śaṅkara's life the many absurdities involved in this story which is, therefore, most unworthy of a man like Vidyāraṇya.

(4) A similar thing is found in the description of the first meeting of Śaṅkara and Govindamuni. When the latter asked Śaṅkara who he was, Śaṅkara burst forth into the following:—

स्वामिन्नहं न पृथिवी न जलं न तेजः । न स्पर्शनो न गगनं न च तद्गुणो वा ।
नापीन्द्रियाण्यपि तु विद्धि ततोऽवशिष्टः ।
यः केवलोऽस्ति परमः स शिवोऽहमस्मि ॥ S. Ś. Jaya—V : 99.

Is this the way any genuine disciple—and particularly one like Śaṅkara—on the spiritual path would speak to his Guru at the very first meeting? He would indeed be a specimen of elevation and humility. Moreover, if he has the spiritual illumination described in the stanza, why at all did he need a Guru? If he had it not, does the answer not sound impudent and vain? And will such a writing do credit to any biographer of Śaṅkara—particularly Vidyāraṇya?

(5) We also find that Mādhava is guilty of many historical anachronisms in that he makes Śaṅkara argue with men like Bhaṭṭa-Bhāskara, Śrī Haṛṣa of Khaṇḍana Khaṇḍa Khāḍya, Udayana, Abhinava Gupta and Nilakaṇṭha, who came centuries after Śaṅkara, even if we accept 8th cent. A.D. as the correct date of Śaṅkara and with men like Bāṇa, Mayūra and Daṇḍin, who preceded Śaṅkara by a century or two. Moreover Abhinava-Gupta, according to Mādhava, belongs to Kāmarūpa (modern Assam) whereas he actually belonged to Kāśmīr. All this shows the writer's lack of historical knowledge and the unhistorical character of his work.

The unhistorical nature of the work is shown by the following facts also:—

(1) Like many other biographies of Śaṅkara, this work also begins the story of Śaṅkara's life in the mythical Puranic fashion

Thus, Nārada comes to the earth, sees that the people have become irreligious, then goes to Kailāsa and reports the matter to Lord Mahādeva and requests Him to be born on earth. Lord Mahādeva then asks Brahmā and the other gods to go ahead and be born on earth, to prepare the background for Him when He would be born. Then different persons like Kumārila, Maṇḍana, Padmapāda and Hastāmālaka are born from the different gods.

(2) As soon as Śaṅkara was born, all the elements of nature became favourable, birds and beasts gave up their age-old animosity and began to live together in peace. Similarly, books fell down from the hands of those, who held views contrary to those of the Advaitins and the mind-lotus of Vyāsa bloomed. This is sheer anticipation as in the other stories of the learned pundits, prediction by the sages and so on, just to proclaim in advance the future greatness of Śaṅkara.

(3) With all those and such other details, Mādhava does not give the date of any single incident or event in Śaṅkara's life, including his birth and passing away.

The late Śrī Bālaśāstri Hardas, a very great scholar from Nagpur, had also, after a careful study, come to the conclusion that the biography in question was not from the pen of the celebrated Vidyāraṇya. Professor B. Upadhyaya of Benares also holds the same view.²⁶ These two scholars together hold that this work was written by one Mādhava-Bhaṭṭa, the author of Bhārata Campā and who refers to himself as Nava-Kalidasa. Professor Upādhyāya and following him, Shri Hardās, give the following arguments in support of their view:—

(1) Vidyāraṇya was one of the pontiffs of the Śringerī mutt. There is, however, a lot of difference between the events and incidents described in S. Ś. Jaya and Guruvamśa-Kāvya, an authorised Śringerī version of Śaṅkara's life.

(2) The writer of S. Ś. Jaya refers to himself as Nava-Kalidāsa,²⁷ which title is not found mentioned in any of the known

26. Vide his श्रीशंकराचार्य-जीवनचरित तथा उपदेश—pp. 12, 18.

27. Cf. वागेष्वा नवकालिदासविदुषः । &c. S. Ś. Jaya, I : 10 : c.

works of Vidyāranya. This work, therefore, seems to have been composed by some Mādhava-Bhaṭṭa, holding the title Nava-Kālidāsa.

(3) A list of Vidyāranya's works is available. The list does not contain the name of this work, viz. S. Ś. Jaya.

(4) The style of this work does not have the grace and the finish of the celebrated Mādhavācārya (i.e. Vidyāranyamuni).

(5) This work has borrowed verbatim 25 stanzas from Rāja. D., who belongs to the 16th Cent. A.D. Vidyāranya flourished in the 14th Cent. A.D.

All these arguments lead to two conclusions :

(1) The present work is not older than 2 centuries and hence cannot have been written by Vidyāranya of the 14th Cent.

(2) It has been written by some Nava-Kulidasa and one Bhaṭṭaśrī Nārāyaṇa Śāstrī introduced into it as many changes as he liked with the help of Kokkonḍa Venkataratnam Garu and Subramanya Śāstrī from Bangalore. Bhaṭṭaśrī openly admitted having done this. (Sri B. Hardas).

In fine, this Mādhaviya Ś. D. is neither Mādhaviya nor Śaṅkara Digvijaya. (Sri B. Hardas).

On the strength of evidence adduced by me so far, I also agree with the view of the two learned scholars, viz., that the present S. Ś. Jaya has been written, not by Vidyāranyamuni but by one Mādhavabhaṭṭa, the author of Bhāratacampū and that it must have been written sometime between 1630 A.D. and 1800 A.D. It is quite possible that it was tampered with by Bhaṭṭaśrī Nārāyaṇa Śāstrī, as suggested by Sri Hardas, though certainly not written by any one person at such a late period. In conclusion, I hold that this work—S. Ś. Jaya of Mādhava—is historically quite valueless as an independent work of one single genius, being, as said already, only a combination of some earlier works and that as such, it is absolutely unworthy of a great intellectual and spiritual genius like Sri Vidyāranya-muni.

Abbreviations

(1) Vyā.	Vyāsācala
(2) Tiru. D.	Tirumala Dīxit
(3) Rāja. D.	Rājavūdamani Dīxit
(4) Mād.	Mādhava
(5) Ānand.	Ānandagiri
(6) Ś. V.	Śaṅkara Vijaya
(7) Ś. D.	Śaṅkara Digvijaya
(8) Pr. Ś. V.	Prācīna Śaṅkara Vijaya
(9) S. Ś. Jaya	Śaṅksepa Śaṅkara Jaya
(10) Pat. Ch.	Patañjali Carita
(11) Br. Sū. Bh.	Brahma Sūtra Bhāṣya
(12) A. R. L.	Advaita Rājya Lakṣmī.
(13) धन°	Dhanapati-Sūrin.